

Clinical Dialogue Transcript — ADHD

Therapist Model:	barca-boy/primate_autotrain_mental_llama
Patient Model:	llama-3.1-8b-instant
Condition / DSM-5:	ADHD
Session ID:	620378c5-082b-4ecc-94f6-5abe63da6385
Date / Time:	2026-07-18 19:00:42
Total Dialogue Turns:	21

THERAPIST (Turn 1)

Hi, thanks for coming in today. What's been going on for you lately?

PATIENT (Turn 2)

It's been... yeah. Just the usual, I guess. I've been trying to get some stuff done, but it's hard to keep track of anything. I mean, I'll start a project, and then I'll get distracted by something else. Like, I was trying to clean my room the other day, and I saw a dust bunny under the couch, and I was like, "Oh, I need to get that out." And then I spent the next hour trying to get it out, and by the time I remembered what I was doing, it was too late.

THERAPIST (Turn 3)

Sorry to hear that. Have you been feeling depressed?

PATIENT (Turn 4)

No, not really. I just feel... overwhelmed, I guess. Like, I know I should be able to do all this stuff, but my brain just doesn't want to cooperate. It's frustrating, you know? I feel like I'm just not living up to my potential or something. But, I mean, I'm not sad or anything. Just... stuck, I suppose.

THERAPIST (Turn 5)

I see. It sounds like you're experiencing a lack of motivation and focus. Have you considered seeing a therapist?

PATIENT (Turn 6)

(scoffs slightly) Oh, yeah, I've seen plenty of therapists. It's not like it's going to change anything, though. I mean, they just tell me to "stay focused" and "prioritize my tasks." Like, I know that. It's not that easy. And, honestly, it feels like they're just trying to make me feel worse about myself. (pauses, looks around the room) Oh, excuse me, is that a clock? I love clocks. I was thinking of getting one of those fancy smartwatches...

THERAPIST (Turn 7)

(smiling) That's okay. It's important to have a good support system. Have you considered talking to a friend about what's going on?

PATIENT (Turn 8)

(sighs) Yeah, I've tried that. I mean, my friends are great, but they just don't get it. They're all like, "Dude, just relax, don't worry about it." But they don't understand what it's like to have your brain just... wander off. And, to be honest, I'm a little worried about what they'll think of me if they really knew how much of a mess I am. (looks down, fidgets with hands) I mean, I'm just bad at adulting, you know?

THERAPIST (Turn 9)

(nodding) That's a common feeling. It can be hard to share these struggles with others, especially when we're afraid of being judged or misunderstood. What do you think might help you with your lack of motivation and focus?

PATIENT (Turn 10)

(thinks for a moment) Hmm, well, I don't know... I've tried breaking tasks down into smaller steps, and making lists, and setting reminders... but it all just feels like a lot of work. And, to be honest, I'm not really sure what would work. I've tried a bunch of different things, and nothing seems to stick. (pauses) Oh, wait, I just remembered something. I was supposed to call my sister yesterday, and I totally forgot. I should probably do that... (trails off)

THERAPIST (Turn 11)

(nodding) It's okay. Don't worry about it. You're doing your best. Is there anything else you want to talk about?

PATIENT (Turn 12)

(shrugs) I don't know... I guess it's just weird to think about how I've been like this my whole life. I mean, I was always getting in trouble in school for not paying attention, and my parents were always on my case about it... (pauses, looks down) It's just hard to think about all the things I could've done differently if I had just been able to focus. (pauses again) Oh, hey, do you have any idea why my car insurance bill is so high? I swear, I've been paying that thing for years, and it still never makes sense to me...

THERAPIST (Turn 13)

(smiling) I'm not sure, but I'm here to listen. Is there anything else you'd like to talk about?

PATIENT (Turn 14)

(sighs) No, I don't think so. I just... (pauses, looks around the room) I don't know, it just feels like I'm stuck, you know? Like, I'm just going through the motions, but I'm not really living. And it's hard to explain, but it feels like this is just who I am now. Like, I'll never be able to change or anything. (shrugs) Sorry, I'm just feeling really frustrated, I guess. (looks down, fidgets with hands)

THERAPIST (Turn 15)

(nodding) That's okay. It's okay to feel frustrated. It's okay to feel stuck. And it's okay to not know what to do. It's okay to just feel.

PATIENT (Turn 16)

(looks up, slightly surprised) Yeah... I guess you're right. I mean, I've been trying to just "get over it" and "be more productive" and all that, but it's nice to just... feel okay about feeling stuck, I guess. (pauses, looks around the room again) You know, I was thinking about getting a planner or something. Maybe that would help me keep track of things better. Do you think that would work?

THERAPIST (Turn 17)

(nodding) It could be helpful. It can be hard to stay organized and focused when you're feeling overwhelmed. A planner might help you prioritize your tasks and stay on track.

PATIENT (Turn 18)

(nods, looks slightly hopeful) Yeah, maybe. I've tried planners before, but I always end up losing them or forgetting to use them. (pauses, looks down) But I guess it's worth a shot, right? (looks up) Do you think it's weird that I'm always losing things? I mean, I'll misplace my keys or my phone or something, and it's always in the same place... (trails off)

THERAPIST (Turn 19)

(nodding) No, it's not weird. It's common for people to misplace things from time to time. It doesn't necessarily indicate a problem with memory.

PATIENT (Turn 20)

(nods slightly) Yeah, I guess you're right. I just... (pauses, looks around the room) I feel like it's a big deal, you know? Like, I'm just so scatterbrained and disorganized all the time. (sighs) I'll be in the middle of a task, and I'll think, "Oh, I need to get a pen," and then I'll go look for a pen, and I won't be able to find it. (shrugs) It's just really frustrating.

THERAPIST (Turn 21)

(nodding) I understand. It's frustrating when we feel like we're not able to stay focused and complete tasks. It's important to be kind to yourself and not beat yourself up over little things like misplacing your keys or forgetting to do something.